

sion of them. Prisoners sometimes use stout wire to manipulate the cell door locking system and escapes have resulted.

The exterior of the jail should be well lighted at night to permit observation of persons approaching the building.

Windows should be glazed with translucent glass to prevent prisoners from observing what is going on outside the jail and outsiders looking into the jail. Paint should not be used on window glass.

In order to fix responsibility for any escapes which may occur, a count of prisoners should be made each time tours of duty change and the incoming officer required to receipt for the number of prisoners found in custody.

ADMINISTRATIVE

Each prisoner upon admission should be carefully searched for weapons, tools and drugs. He should be required to bathe at once and his clothing fumigated if necessary. Failure to care-